JUVENILE CRIME PROBLEM

THE attitude of the Irish people to juvenile delinquency is one of complacency and ignorance, said Professor E. Fahy, M.A., Barrister-at-Law, speaking on "Juvenile Delinquency—Methods of Treatment in Eire" at the annual conference of Alexandra College Guild, held in the College, Earlsfort terrace, Dublin, on Saturday.

The multiplicity of causes resulting in juvenile crime makes some sort of scientific research into the circumstances behind each individual delinquent a necessity; in Ireland little or no attempt is made to discover the background of the child before trial, he continued. The Summerhill Remand Home, to which most male delinquents are sent, was no better than a dreary dungeon, and the work of research was left to six Probation Officers, who have so much to do that they can only discover the barest outlines of the child's career. As for phychological treatment, it is entirely unknown, and, from the Dail debates on the Children's Act, it can be seen that the members poured scorn on the idea that such methods were effective. It was better to spend £5,000 attempting to solve the problem of juvenile delinquency than to allow the money to be spent on maintaining convicts in Portlaoighise Prison at a cost to the State of £120 each a year.

IN ENGLAND

Miss Flora Harding, B.A., of New Scotland Yard, who spoke on "Juvenile Delinquency in England," outlined the procedure in the six courts for children in London, and said that the punishment was made to fit, not the crime, but the criminal.

If children of our city become delinquents, vandals and juvenile criminals, there is a responsibility on every individual adult member of the community, said Commander B. T. Coote in a talk on the subject of "Citizens in the Making." Even now that they had become conscious of the situation, the great majority can think of nothing but action after the event, by means of Borstal or other institution, and the multiplication of Probation Officers, into whose hands none of the children will come until their book of life is already besmirched.

A resolution, that the conference was of opinion that the present treatment of juvenile delinquents was highly unsatisfactory, and that the matter needed full public investigation and reformation, was adopted.

Lady Moore was in the chair.

UNEMPLOYMENT

A commission of inquiry is being set up by the Minister for Industry and Commerce into the whole question of juvenile unemployment in Eire. The fact that the Minister proposed to create such a commission was announced in the Dail recently during a debate on an estimate for reformatory and industrial schools.

It is understood that the Commission will not be confined in its investigations merely to the extent of juvenile unemployment and its causes, but will be empowered to propose reliefs and also to examine the problem of juvenile delinquency. The personnel of the Commission is being selected, and it is learned that the Most Rev. Dr. McQuaid, Archbishop of Dublin, has been asked to preside over the inquiry.

270 Dail Aspirants

IT is now estimated that about 270 candidates are in the field for the 138 seats in the Dail which are to be filled as a result of the coming general election.

It does not follow that all those mentioned actually will be nominated. Before their names go on the ballot paper there is an important preliminary—namely, the lodging with the election authority of a deposit of £100. This sum will be returned in the case of a candidate elected, or who secures one-third of th equota. Those who fail to get this proportion of the quota will forfeit their deposit. At the last election in 1938, no fewer than 19 candidates were in this position. The total number of candidates in that election was only 207.

Both Fianna Fail and Fine Gael are confining themselves to approximately the same number of candidates as in 1938, but Labour, which had then only 28 candidates, is credited this time with the intention of nominating at least 80. These, and the large number of farmer candidates who are to be nominated, account for the big increase in the nummber who are expected in the field.

SIX WOMEN

Of women candidates there will be about half-a-dozen. The three women deputies who are already in the Dail will, it is understood, be again nominated, and there are at least three others mentioned, including Miss Ennis, who is going forward as a Fine Gael candidate; Miss Bobbett, in the farmers' interests; and Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington as an Independent. Mrs Carty, widow of the late Mr. Frank Carty, was selected for her husband's seat as Fianna Fail representative for Sligo, but has now withdrawn.

For the present little is being heard of the elections for the Senate, which will follow the Dail contests. Nevertheless, the interest in these will be no less than in the Dail elections. To a large extent they will depend on the success or otherwise which comes to candidates for the Dail; but there is another aspect. The bodies which were elected at the recent Local Government elections will have an important bearing on the personnel of the new Senate. In view of the successes which the Labour group achieved, it is not improbable that that body will substantially increase its membership in the Senate. The eleven to be nominated by the Taoiseach will, of course, depend on the result of the Dail elections and on the individual who will be selected by the new House to that office.

The Switch is the Trouble

A dispute between the Department of Posts and Telegraphs and their employés in the new telephone exchange in Dublin regarding the working of the switch has caused a delegation of workers to be sent to London by the Post Office Workers' Union. The working of the new switch, the workers contend, imposes undue hardship on them, while the Department holds that the switch is similar to that in use in London trunk exchanges. The national executive of the union considered the question and decided to send the delegation to London to investigate the matter.

This and many other matters are dealt with in the annual report of the union which will be considered at the annual conference in the Teachers' Hall, Dublin, on June 3 and 4.

"Give Us A Clear Majority," Says Mr. de Valera

THERE was intensive political activity all over the country during the week-end, when members of the various parties claiming support addressed public meetings and party conventions.

Coalition "Frustration"

AT his first open-air meeting of the election campaign, Mr. de Valera, at Thurles yesterday, made a speech that was remarkable, writes our reporter.

For the first half hour he spoke from a sheaf of notes he had used in the election campaign of ten years ago, and he read out and recalled the heads of programmes of that election—the abolition of the test oath, appeal to the Privy Council, the Governor-Generalship, etc. Then came a twenty-minute passage on the financial gains derived by refusing to pay the land annuities. That was followed by a long series of statistics about the development of the sugar, boot and shoe and flour industries, and industry in general. In the last few minutes of his address he came the subject of Coalition Government, which he referred to in much the same terms as he did last week-end, calling it Government by "odds and ends" and "mixum gatherum." He also said that with Coalition Government all we would have would be compromise, and, what was worse than compromise, frustration.

"I believe," he said, "that the Irish people will give us a clear majority over all parties. We have that at the present time, but we cannot afford to lose any seats. If you believe that in this time of crisis the Government has been a good Government, then, if you give it a vote of confidence, everybody here and outside will know how you stand. If the Government does not get a vote of confidence it may be very different. I ask you to ponder on what refusing to give the Government a vote of confidence might mean."

"The national objective has been attained so far as the 26 counties is concerned, and now we have to work so as to get for the whole 32 counties the same freedom that we enjoy here," added Mr. de Valera.

Minister Replies to Mr. Dwyer

If, as Mr. William Dwyer, Fine Gael candidate, had said, the right of Eire to be neutral in this war derived from an Act of Parliament of another country, and Fine Gael believed that, then they must also believe that the same Government could by an act of legislation deprive us of our right to be neutral, said Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Supplies, at Galway yesterday. It was a fact, he added, that the majority of Fine Gael believed nothing of the kind; why then were they allowing Mr. Dwyer to put them in a false position?

Mr. Dwyer had also said that the supplies position here would be changed if Ministers went to England and requested the British Government to meet our needs, but the things that were short here were short in England, and many of the nations prevailing here were larger than those in England. It might be as well to tell Mr. Dwyer that the Irish people would not barter their national rights or territory for a temporary easement of supply difficulties. The elder men of Fine Gael, born to a tradition that Mr. Dwyer never knew, would be at one with Fianna Fail in making that fact clear to him. It would be interesting, said Mr. Lemass, to know for what purpose and by whom Mr. Dwyer was being used as a decoy. It was freely asserted in Fine Gael circles that he would beat Mr. Cosgrave in Cork. Was his nomination a move by a party clique to get rid of an unwanted leader in the simplest way. If all parties were represented in a Government, he added, all parties would be muzzled, and united action would become impossible, and when real danger came the Government would break down.

Fine Gael Offers an Escape from Strife

Mr. de Valera had proclaimed his acceptance of our position as a member of the Commonwealth, so that was no longer an issue in the election, said Mr. T. F. O'Higgins, at a Fine Gael meeting in Macroom, Co. Cork, yesterday. Mr. de Valera had also declared his determined opposition to any form of national unity as expressed through or brought about by a National Government. In this matter he "takes his stand for factionism and strife as against unity and harmony." Mr. de Valera and the Minister for Education had declared their determination to carry on, and even intensify, the present Irish language policy, and the Minister for Supplies had declared that there would be no change of policy in his department. Fine Gael offered the people an escape from discord and strife through a Government combining in itself representatives of all parties, and having behind it the confidence and support of all parties.

WHY MR. DWYER IS STANDING

Mr. William Dwyer, speaking at Roscrea, said he had been attacked by Fianna Fail for daring to enter the Irish political arena—for asserting his right as an Irish citizen and an industrialist to stand as a candidate for Fine Gael, the party that is working for the establishment of a National Government. He had been attacked by the Irish Press because the leading Dublin drapers offered him a subscription towards his candidature, and because he felt that this should be devoted to a purpose in which the Government had failed—the provision of potatoes for the poor of the capital city. Was there any reason why an employer of a thousand workers should not take part in Irish public life? Was this country to be mismanaged for ever by the Fianna Fail Party and their descendants? He had joined the Fine Gael Party because Mr. Cosgrave had pledged himself to forming a National Government, and to do everything possible to sink the differences which had confused the people and retarded the progress of this nation for the last twenty years.

The process of dissolution of the Fianna Fail Party was now far advanced, said Mr. P. McGilligan at a Fine Gael meeting in Carlow on Saturday. The local elections had been disastrous for Fianna Fail, who were now struggling against an even stronger current; but, despite the fact that they caused the £ to slump to a little more than half its value, they called this bankruptcy a strong Government, and asked that a single party should be preferred to the strength of an amalgamation of talent.

ONE-MAN GOVERNMENT

Mr. Brereton Barry, S.C., Fine Gael, at Grange Con said that there was a growing suspicion among the people that Mr. de Valera desired not merely a Government composed of members of one party, but a Government of man existing only for the purpose of registering his judgments and carrying out his decrees. All over the world countries threatened by the war were relying on the collective wisdom of their citizens, and if such a concept were, as Mr. de Valera had said, the hallmark of a defeated party, then there must be an enormous number of defeated parties in the world.

POLITICS "A RACKET"

Mr. J. T. O'Farrell, Labour candidate, speaking in Dundrum, said the extent to which politics had become a profession, if not a racket, in this country, was indicated by the fact that a certain member of the Oireachtas had five sources of income, four of which were from public funds! A demoralising aspect of the present position was the extent to which people seeking certain public appointments had to rely upon political influence as against merit. In the interests of progress, efficiency and common decency, this deplorable trend towards political corruption would have to be stamped out.

The Trade Union Act had brought about an understanding between the political and industrial wings of Labour that had not existed since 1918, said Mr. W. Beirne, T.C., general secretary, Grocers' Union and Dail candidate, speaking at a meeting in Lombard street yesterday.

Dr. J. Hannigan, T.D., said that their medical and hospital accommodation, in spite of the millions that accumulated as a result of the sweep draws, were twenty years behind the times, and the housing problem in Dublin still lacked a sensible solution.

T.D. TO RETIRE

At a Fianna Fail convention in Drumshambo, Mr. B. J. Maguire, T.D., created a sensation by stating he was not going forward as a candidate, although he had not changed his opinion as regards the Fianna Fail Party. The convention then selected Mr. Stephen Flynn, the other sitting member, and Mr. E. J. Boles, Geevagh, Sligo.

At a Labour convention held in Letterkenny, John A. McElhinney, of Convoy, was selected as candidate for the constituency.

From Dublin to Chungking

Mr. Richard Watts, American Press Attaché in Dublin, is in London at present making arrangements which probably will mean his leaving Dublin. From here it is understood that he will go to the American Office of War Information at Chungking, capital of the Nationalist China.

Mr. Watts, if he leaves Dublin, will be missed by a large number of people. Formerly a journalist and dramatic critic, he offered his services to the American Government when the war started and was sent to Dublin. He has already spent some time in Chungking as a journalist, and is familiar with the people and things there.

RUSSIANS BEAT BACK TWO AXIS ATTACKS

RUSSIAN forces have beaten off a strong German counter-attack in the Lisichansk area, where the Russians still hold their bridgehead on the right bank of the Donetz River. Soviet lines were heavily dive-bombed and shelled, but the Germans were held in the first attack, and lost a considerable number of 'planes, says Reuter's special correspondent in Moscow.

The Germans attacked again in the evening, and advanced a few dozen yards under cover of a strong barrage, but furious counter-attacks eventually forced them back into their fortified positions. Many smashed German mortars were left on the battlefield. At another point on the Donetz front, which may become a springboard for the summer offensive, Soviet units outflanked the Germans and captured a strong point. Another unit took a commanding height by storm. The Russians, as a result of the week-end fighting, have now somewhat widened their bridgehead on the Axis side of the Donetz.

The rest of the front is comparatively quiet, though both sides are probing each other's defences. A German attack, supported by four tanks in the Leningrad area, and a strong Soviet raid on the central front are reported by Soviet correspondents. This livening-up has been accompanied by an increase in guerilla activity behind the line.

ATTU FIGHTING

American Drive on Japanese

AMERICAN troops in Eastern Attu launched a triple drive against the remnants of the Japanese holding out on the heights to the west of Chicagof Harbour, in Chicagof Valley, and in the mountains to the north of Lake Nicholas, the U.S. War Department announced last night.

Fighting is raging amid sharp peaks rising 1,700 feet, where one small Japanese units is completely isolated.

It had been announced in a New York message on Saturday that the Americans had captured Attu island.

Americans believe, says Reuter, that an attack on Kiska, the Japanese main base in the Aleutians, will be undertaken as soon as the U.S. grip on Attu is consolidated.

The seventh Earl of Fitzwilliam, formerly a D.L. and J.P. for County Wicklow, left unsettled estate valued at £1,311,458, with net personalty £811,175. The sum of £52,044 was paid in duty.

Apart from Wentworth-Woodhouse, Rotherham, his Yorkshire home, described as the biggest private residence in England, where he died on the 15th February, aged 70, he lived at The Lodge, Malton, Yorks., and Coollatin, Shillelagh, Co. Wicklow, where he had a model estate.

He left £20,000, jewels, other property, and an annuity of £2,000 to his wife, and, after provision for 16 annuities, ranging in value from £1,000 to £20, and other bequests, he left the residue to his son, Viscount Milton, the new Earl, who married Miss Olivia Plunket, younger daughter of Right Rev. the Hon. Dr. Plunket, formerly Bishop of Meath. His trustees are authorised to continue his voluntary allowances, pensions, and subscriptions to certain charitable institutions.

A former Lord Mayor of Sheffield, he was on the British Headquarters Staff in the Boer War and the last war, and was owner of Elsecar Main Colliery, Yorks.

Emergency Services in Action

Simulated bomb damage and imaginary large-scale fires were quickly dealt with in a big turnout of emergency services in North County Dublin (Balbriggan Police District) yesterday. Alert mobile air-raid fire services and local fire crews soon had all outbreaks under control, rescue and demolition squads effected many rescues from wrecked buildings, and Irish Red Cross staffed first-aid posts were kept busy treating innumerable "casualties." Incidents were staged in such widely separated areas as Malahide, Swords, Donabate, Lusk, Rush, Skerries and Balbriggan. An efficient communications service was provided by the Garda and L.S.F. between the scenes of the incidents and the County Control Centre, Parnell Square. Also assisting in the work of first-aid were members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and Local Defence Force.

During the day, a tour of the area was made by Mr. D. J. O'Donovan, County Commissioner and Director of A.R.P. in County Dublin; Major A. Lawlor, Military Director, Civil Defence; Captain Crawford, Department of Defence; Chief Superintendent W. P. Quinn, Messrs. McNamara and Milne, St. John Ambulance Brigade, and Doctors Lavelle and May, Irish Red Cross Society.

Farmers' Party Needed

The Clann na Talmhan (National Agricultural Party) candidates for Co. Dublin—Miss Elizabeth Bobbett and Mr. Patrick Hickey—addressed meetings in Tallaght, Bohernabreena and Newcastle, Co. Dublin, yesterday. Mr. Hickey said he hoped Clann na Talmhan would be returned with full power, and they would constitute a menace by clearing the Government of the present system of corruption and jobbery. Clann na Talmhan was not a professional political party. Miss Bobbett said that if the nation was to be saved it lay in having a strong Farmers' Party in the Dail.

Allied Leaders Said To Have Decided On Their War Plans

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT and Mr. Churchill are expected to announce the results of the two weeks' Anglo-American Staff talks in general terms to-day or to-morrow. The statement has already been drafted for final consideration.

Reuter's Special Correspondent in Washington says:—

A last-minute unofficial survey of the war talks indicates these general findings:—

1—A "beat Hitler first" strategy has been reaffirmed.

2—Prospects of some speed-up in the Pacific have been enhanced, with the Allies for the time being concentrating on a limited island-to-island offensive against Japan.

3—Burma campaign to be launched in the autumn.

Sensations can be excluded, the correspondent adds, but there is some speculation centring round a high military personality—which suggests the possibility of changes in Allied commands.

It is generally agreed that the decisions taken during the past few days will be reflected, first, by intensified air bombardment all over Europe, followed by diversionary land attacks.

Interest in Far East strategy revolves round the position of Field-Marshal Wavell, who would normally be charged with the task of re-opening the Burma Road in the autumn, in accordance with the decision to increase the aid to China.

Rome radio stated yesterday that Italy's anti-aircraft defences have been greatly strengthened.

"The enemy has been sending an ever-increasing number of aeroplanes to bomb our cities, but our strengthened fighter and anti-aircraft defence is beginning to take heavier toll of them.

"It will take the Allies twelve years before they can set foot in Europe. If the African campaign was hard for the Allies, the European campaign will be four times as hard for them."

The Soviet News Agency, quoting a Geneva report, says that Signor Mussolini received Herr Mackensen, German Ambassador in Rome, three times in the past week. Marshal Ambrosio, Chief of the Italian General Staff, and Marshal Kesselring, German Air Chief in the Mediterranean, were present at the third meeting.

Dr. Rosenberg, German Minister for the Occupied eastern territories, said at Limburg yesterday, according to German radio:—

"Germany to-day is faced with the worst imaginable hatred. The entire German people understand that we are in a decisive epoch in German history. We know what our enemies have in store for us—as they wanted to do with us in 1918—the dissolution and destruction of the German people.

"Roosevelt asks for unconditional surrender, and Stalin intends to mobilise the entire German people to rebuild the destroyed regions in his country. This means eternal slavery for us."

He Knows

"I KNOW where the blow will fall. Perhaps it won't fall in the Mediterranean at all."

Mr. Oliver Lyttelton, British Minister for Production, said this at Aldershot on Saturday, referring to Allied invasion plans.

Big Air Offensive in the Mediterranean

YESTERDAY'S communiqué from Allied H.Q., North Africa, stated:—

"On Saturday Flying Fortresses, escorted by Lightnings, attacked Borizzo airfield in Sicily. Bombs burst all over the airfield and fires were started. Enemy fighters attacked our bombers, and seven enemy 'planes were destroyed. A Maraudr of the Coastal Air Force shot down an Me. 323 transport 'plane. Four of our aircraft are missing.

"Naval activity continued in Tunisian waters. On Saturday morning one of our vessels intercepted a sailing boat off Cape Bon and took prisoner eight Germans escaping from Sidi Daoud, on the west side of the peninsula.

"During the past fortnight some 900 Germans and Italians, mostly escaping in small craft, have been captured by the Navy. Minesweepers are still busily engaged in the dangerous work of clearing channels through the enemy's minefields."

The Malta communiqué stated:—

"On Saturday our fighter bombers attacked Gela Ponte Olivib, in Southern Sicily. Bombs burst at the north end of the aerodrome and on a runway near buildings north of the aerodrome. Fighters shot down one Me. 109 and damaged two others. On Saturday night our Intruders attacked a wireless station and Camp Melilli, in Eastern Sicily, starting fires visible 50 miles away. Hits were also observed on the Pozzalo factory, in Southern Sicily. At Sancataldo, in Central Sicily, a large building was hit, exploded, and burst into flames. Trains were also attacked during the night."

The attack by U.S. Flying Fortresses against the airfield of Borizzo was the biggest single attack of the day.

The Italian communiqué stated that the Allied raids caused only limited damage and a few casualties, and that 25 Allied 'planes were shot down.—(Reuter.)

Giraud Offer to de Gaulle

General Catroux has arrived back in London from Algiers. He immediately conferred with General de Gaulle, to whom he conveyed a letter from General Giraud offering to form a new French Executive Committee. The main points of the proposal are:—

1. Formation of a Central Executive Committee in Algiers with General Giraud and General de Gaulle as joint Presidents, taking the chair in turn, and equally empowered to sign decrees issued by the Committee.

2. The Committee to hand over its powers to a Provisional Government as soon as possible after the liberation of France.

General Giraud urges the importance of uniting all French forces as soon as possible.—(Reuter.)

Fatal Cycle Crash at Enniskerry

One young woman was killed instantly and another seriously injured as the result of a cycling accident at Enniskerry on Saturday. The dead woman is Miss Kathleen Farrelly (23), Killeshandra, Co. Cavan, and the other, Miss Molly McGibney (18), of Ballyjamesduff, both employed as maids by Mr. Arthur Chatterton, estate agent for Lord Powerscourt. Miss Farrelly was riding a man's bicycle down Kilgarron Hill, and Miss McGibney was seated on the crossbar. When they arrived at the foot of the hill they failed to take the bend leading to the village, and crashed into a wall. Miss McGibney was taken to St. Michael's Hospital, Dun Laoghaire, suffering from severe head injuries, before the shortage became acute.

Heavy Death Roll in Raids on English South Coast Towns

A CROWDED public-house, which received a direct hit during lunch-time raids on two English coastal towns yesterday, burst into flames, and nearly everyone inside is believed to have perished.

Big death rolls are feared in the towns, which had their heavist bombing of the war. One town is in the South, and the other on the South-East coast.

Debris Piled High

Flying in low from the sea, small forces of swift fighter-bombers—three of which were shot down—fanned out over the towns and dropped bombs on hotels, public-houses and large departmental stores. The débris of one south coast town hotel was piled so high that rescued people had to be lowered to the ground.

A neighbouring town was also bombed.

MANY TRAPPED

At the south coast town search was continuing last night for survivors amid the mounds of rubble to which several hotels had been reduced, and under which many people are believed to have been trapped. Many large stores were destroyed by fire. Hundreds of windows were shattered by blast.

Last night, after helpers had cleared paths through the débris, the church bell rang out for Evening Service, and about 200 people attended.

Search was made among other extensively damaged buildings in the south coast town, but it is feared that many bodies may never be found. Landmarks familiar to thousands of holiday-makers have disappeared. One of the departmental stores was extensively damaged by fire, the flames spreading to adjoining buildings, and the firemen fought the flames at great risk. Rescue and first-aid parties toiled for hours releasing injured persons in the south coast town, and taking them to hospital. A squad of A.T.S. girls played a fine part in the rescue work. From one of the public-houses two customers walked out uninjured, but a number of other persons, including the licensee and his wife, were buried under the wreckage.

Nearly 100 people in the restaurant and bars of one of the hotels in the town had a lucky escape. A bomb struck an upper storey, but crashed through into adjoining premises.

When the public-house was hit, burying all those in it, old cottages nearby were razed. About a dozen people have been rescued alive, and three bodies have also been recovered.

HITS ON CONVOYS

"During the week-end Fighter Command kept up its attacks on enemy transport in occupied countries and around the coast," said the British Air Ministry News Service.

DECISION TO DISBAND COMINTERN

World-wide Interest

A DECREE by the Executive Committee of the Communist International recommending the disbandment of the International because of the "conditions of the World War" was broadcast on Saturday by Moscow radio.

In making the decision the Presidium—the governing body which acts for the full Executive Committee in matters of urgency—calls upon all Communist parties to concentrate all their strength in support of the States fighting Germany, her allies and vassals. All sections of the Comintern—including the Communist Party of Great Britain—are released from the obligations imposed upon them by the rules of the organisation. They are left free to pursue national policies untrammelled by interference from the Moscow headquarters.

NEWS WELCOMED

The dissolution of the International has provoked world-wide comment. While most of the Allied nations, says the Press Association, welcomed the move, Berlin and Rome criticised it.

The New York Herald-Tribune said: "It would be difficult to overestimate the importance of this move. The Comintern was a constant point of quarrel between Russia and the rest of the world, the great political obstacle to a speedy liquidation of this war through military victory and a sound peace."

"This step is, unmistakably, directed towards meeting the justified criticism against Communist interference in matters of domestic concern to Russia's allies," says the New York Times. "All this gives added point to the new invitation issued by Mr. Churchill to Premier Stalin to meet him and President Roosevelt in conference in order to unify both the strategy and purposes of the United Nations."

LONDON COMMENT

The Daily Herald (London) says: What will be the effect of the dissolution upon the Communist Party of Great Britain? The logical effect should be that the party, in turn, should be dissolved. It can decide to pass into oblivion or carry on as a purely national organisation. If it should decide upon the latter course, will it still press for affiliation with the Labour Party? It may do so, and it may claim that the rules of the organisation. They are left free to pursue national policies untrammelled by interference from the Moscow headquarters.

The Daily Worker (London) today says:—"The achievement of the full unity of the democratic peoples in the fight against Fascism and for the progress of mankind is the vital need of the moment, and it is from this standpoint that the historic resolution of the Communist International will be considered."

AXIS VIEW

Axis comment, which has been substantially the same from Rome and Berlin, was mostly based on the argument that the dissolution was bluff, which would not alter the so-called danger of Bolshevism.

M. Laval was quoted by Vichy Radio yesterday as saying that the measure was no surprise, but that no special significance was to be attached to it.—(Reuter.)

NO MORE SHINY COMPLEXIONS

Women everywhere are taking up with enthusiasm a new type of make up foundation, introduced from America. This new liquid foundation has the great merit of staying absolutely matt even under trying conditions.

WOMEN'S PROBLEM SOLVED

THE immediate success of the new liquid make up foundation, which is rapidly replacing face cream on smart women's dressing tables, is proof that it does fill a need—a need of which women were all fully conscious. The one major defect of ordinary face cream as a foundation is that the result is short lived, especially in warm weather or in a close atmosphere.

This defect is overcome, once and for all, by the new liquid foundation, first introduced in America by the famous cosmetic expert, Henry C. Miner, and now available in Ireland. Because it is entirely non-greasy this new foundation retains its matt surface and will not become shiny under any conditions.

Although freedom from shine is the major benefit of the new liquid foundation—Miner's Liquid Make Up Foundation—this is only one of its advantages. It gives an exquisitely smooth all-over petal smooth finish, and effectively disguises minor skin blemishes. And —an important point this, to Miss Modern who is always in a hurry—it is quickly and easily applied. Just smooth on with the hands; it dries almost instantly. If you value your appearance you really should try this new method, which will free you from the need for constantly "touching up" your complexion. Chemists everywhere have it in 5 skin-matched shades—Naturel, Rachel, Dark Rachel, Blonde Tan, Brunette Tan—at 8d. and 1/9.

DEFIES THE SUN

If your powder base is Miner's Liquid Make Up Foundation your skin stays matt no matter how hot the day.

RADOX IN THE PINK PACKET

The Phœnix Wins Guineas

THE PHŒNIX, unbeaten champion juvenile colt of last season, gave Mr. F. S. Myerscough his first Irish classic winner when, at the Curragh on Saturday, he won the 2,000 Guineas from Solferino and Solar Prince.

It was a sound rather than a spectacular performance; for at one stage it looked as though The Phœnix, first choice of most backers, would be beaten by Solferino. That he won by a margin of half a length from Mr. McVey's colt was in no small way due to the excellent judgment shown by Joe Canty, who had The Phœnix well placed from an early stage.

A furlong from home Solferino had a slight lead, but a couple of "reminders" by Canty kept The Phœnix about his business, and the colt ran on gamely to gain the verdict, with the heavily backed Solar Prince third, a further length away.

There are no hard luck stories to be told about the race and the three placed horses are colts of outstanding class. Should they alone avoid mishap this year's Irish Derby is likely to prove one of the most interesting races of the year.

The Madrid Handicap was won by the Irish Lincolnshire third, Wykehamist, but it was only after an unexpectedly strong challenge from the rank outsider, Eire, that Mr. More O'Ferrall's colt scored.

Molly's Choice and No Trace won their respective races and gave the Conyngham Lodge stable some compensation for the defeat of the well-backed Magic Bridge, Solar Prince, Still Water and Mount Leinster.

Schools' Athletics

CONDITIONS were anything but favourable for the Leinster Secondary Schools' Athletic Championships, at Blackrock College on Saturday, and the senior and junior long jumps; the senior hop, step and jump, and the final of the senior relay were postponed to Thursday next at 4.30.

The senior shot-put record of 46ft. 4ins., established by P. Fitzgerald (King's Hospital) on Tuesday last, was not improved upon, but in the junior event D. McEvoy (Clongowes) beat the previous best by 3 inches with a fine put of 51ft. 11½ins.

N. McQuillan (Castleknock), C. O'Cleirigh (Synge Street), and B. O'Malley (Clongowes) each won the 100 yards and 220 yards in his respective section, O'Cleirigh gaining his 100 yards' victory in a thrilling finish by inches only from A. Lowry (Clongowes), who beat A. McGrath (Belvedere) for second place by the same margin.

The President's Cup for the senior 100 yards went to Castleknock, who also lead in the senior team shield with 15 points, the other placings so far being: Blackrock 12, Clongowes 10, King's Hospital 7, and Synge Street 6.

The destination of the junior team shield will be decided by the result of the one junior event still outstanding—the long jump. Clongowes (9½ points), Blackrock (9), Roscrea (7½) and Belvedere (7), are all represented in this event, while Synge Street, who have no candidate, are present leaders with 11 points.

Golf Captains' Dinners

There was the remarkable entry of 140 for the captain's (Mr. E. A. Dwyer) prize at Royal Dublin on Saturday, and 100 attended the dinner, at which the captain presided. The winner was a new member, Mr. Sam Ryan, who had the exceptionally fine score of 66. A Maher was runner-up with 77 off 12, and for the best gross T. A. Healy tied with Kevin Troy with 78. The former winning on the second nine; the Lumsden Putter was won by C. J. McNamara with 37.

At the dinner the toast of the captain was proposed by Mr. J. J. Hickey, ex-captain, who referred to the popularity of Mr. Dwyer, who was largely responsible for the amalgamation of the schools' unions into the Union of Irish Schools. The captain of Portmarnock (Mr. M. O'Connor) replied for the visitors, proposed by Judge Shannon, and said that they would be glad to hear that, far from being in a bad position as the result of the prevailing conditions, his club was flourishing financially. Mr. T. Morris, captain of Dun Laoghaire, also spoke for the visitors. Mr. J. Cowle was at the piano.

There also was a big turn out for the captain's (Mr. S. Charters) prize at Kilcroney, which was won by Captain J. W. Ramsay (18) with 68. For the second prize W. F. Turner (14), W. Davidson (19) and W. Darcus (22) tied with 70. At the dinner Captain Ramsay proposed the toast of the Kilcroney club (responded to by Mr. J. W. Lane), and congratulated the captain on the excellent condition of the course and the continued prosperity of the club. Mr. Allan B. Kidd responded to the toast of the Golfing Union of Ireland, given by Mr. Charters. Dr. P. J. Keogh, proposing the toast of the visitors (Mr. J. E. Kenny, captain of Greystones, and Mr. J. P. Rooney) made a strong appeal for a public golf course for Dublin.

TRINITY LOSE SHIELD

R.U.C. beat Dublin University by 21 points to 20 in the relay contest for the Londonderry Shield, which Trinity has held since 1938, at Cherryvale, Belfast, on Saturday.

Trinity were unfortunate to lose the contest, a fact that was largely due to their disqualification in the hurdle race. Thanks to a fine run by Harvey, who got over his hurdles stylishly and cleanly, the team finished first, only to suffer disqualification for having knocked down too many obstacles. With Hackett and Tuckey they should have won the half-mile, but the R.U.C. scored the higher points. A R.U.C. man, Prenter, won the mile; but this event was run as a team race, the position of all the runners deciding the result, and, with Tuckey in second place, and the other two Trinity representatives in third and fourth positions, they got the maximum points. Both Tuckey and Hackett are short of training, and should do better in later events of the season.

The events won by the R.U.C. were the 110 x 4, 880 x 4, the long jump, shot and discus; and Trinity's wins were in the 220 x 4, 440 x 4, the mile and the high jump. The single win of Queen's was in the hurdles. Best performances in the long jump and shot were made by Trinity men, Macready-Bryan (22ft.) and Horan (43ft. 3ins.). The Trinity tail was weak, and the aggregate distances decided the result.

DUBLIN BAY YACHTING

At Dun Laoghaire on Saturday, the R.A.Y.C. handicap for cruisers was won by Marama (H. Osterberg) with ease; she was the scratch boat, and gave Punctilio nd Windward their allowances and had nearly as much again to spare.

The D.B.S.C. Cruiser matches came to nothing. In the 21-Footers' match, Geraldine (R. A. Wright) robbed Estelle (R. D. Wright) of the lead in the close of the first round, and finished 35 secs. ahead of her at the end. Maureen came next, then Vroona, Viola and Innisfallen. On the handicap Estelle took 1st, Geraldine 2nd and Oola 3rd prize.

In the 17-Footers' match, Eileen (T. H. Roche) finished 20 secs. ahead of Bobolink (J. J. Macken), but the latter won on handicap. Silver Moon was 3rd, Eileen and Bobolink were reported to the Committee for transgressing a rule re finishing line. Oonagh (E. M. Booth), the scratch boat, won the Mermaids' race in style. Ruby, Daphne and Stella coming next, and then Dabchick, Amy, Mantis and Minx. On the handicap Oonagh took 1st, Ruby 2nd and Stella 3rd prize. Only 8 Wags competed, and 7 finished, Coonette (G. H. Jones) taking the winning gun 22 secs. ahead of Maureen (A. W. Mooney), 31 secs. ahead of Phyllis (W. R. McFerran) and 48 secs. ahead of Vega. Vandor, Mollie and Tomboy followed. On the handicap, Maureen took 1st, Phyllis 2nd and Nandor 3rd prize.

DUBLIN SOCCER TEAMS IN SEMI-FINALS

Shamrock Rovers and Bohemians qualified for the semi-final round for the Inter-City Cup on Saturday. At Dalymount Park, where the Rovers beat Cliftonville 3-1, the match was spoiled by the slippery ground, and at no time did it arouse the public excitement. Rovers held a lead of two clear goals at the interval (Coad and T. Clarke, the centre-forward), and the scorers in the second half were Carrie (Cliftonville) and Delany (Rovers). The teams started level as the result of the game at Belfast on a one-all score.

At Belfast Bohemians, who won the match in Dublin by 4-2, defeated Derry City by 3-1. They led 2-1 at half-time, Dunne and K. O'Flanagan being their scorers, Carlyle getting the Derry goal. K. O'Flanagan got Bohemians' third.

To-day—Bohemians v. Belfast Celtic, at Dalymount Park (7.15); Shamrock Rovers v. Distillery, at Belfast.

Frank Johnston, who played for Dundalk, is the former Blackrock Rugby player. He created a very favourable impression.

T.C.D. NOTES

BY OUR CORRESPONDENT.

THE increase in the cost of living is making itself felt in Trinity College, as elsewhere, and the Board has recently announced its decision to raise the half-yearly College fees.

For students entering after 1st arch, 1944, the half-yearly fees will be thirteen guineas instead of ten, as at present.

Candidates for Entrance Examinations held after that date will have to pay an Examination Fee of £1, and the fees for the Degrees of B.A., B.Sc., and B.A.I. will be increased by £1 apiece.

Professional fees will remain unaltered in so far as they are in the control of the College.

This increase in fees does not mean that any student who has ability need forego a Trinity education, however limited his means. A recent official calculation shows that the amount of the assistance given each year to students in prizes, remission of fees, and miscellaneous concessions is very large. Few universities must use as large a proportion of their income in helping those who need, and those who deserve, help.

TRINITY WEEK

This year arrangements for Trinity Week are in the capable hands of Mr. F. G. Cooke, who has devised several schemes to meet the war-time economy. He has formed a ladies' committee, under the very able Miss Betty McClelland, to look after the teas at the College Races. Many of the ladies of College have been asked to sell Trinity Week badges, and we hope that they will not let him down. Any lady who has not received, or who would like more badges, should get in touch with Mr. Cooke, or his assistant, Mr. D. H. Carroll.

There are the usual events during the week, with a special tit-bit for cricket "fans" on the Monday and Tuesday. The D.U. First XI. are matched against Sir John Maffey's XI., and rumours are current that Sir John's team will include at least one or two well-known M.C.C. players. On Tuesday, at 5.45, the D.U. Choral Society are broadcasting Part II. of their concert on the B.B.C. Home Service stations, and in the evening the Boxing Club have an attractive engagement with Avona selected. On Wednesday afternoon are the College Races, and that night the Trinity Week Dance takes place in the Metropole Ballroom. Thursday is the day of the Tennis Championships. On Friday and Saturday activities are transferred to the Boat Club at Islandbridge. Friday evening is the Ladies' Concert given by the Choral Society, in the Examination Hall, at 7.15 p.m. There is a change in price for the Boat Club "At Home" on Saturday evening—any person with a Trinity Week Badge, 2s. 6d.; otherwise 5s. (single). Last year a sum of over £550 was collected and distributed during "the Rag." The details of the allocation will appear in this year's "Trinity Parade," which will be on sale as usual on Trinity Monday. The "Parade" is being published by the T.C.D. Publishing Company for the "Rag" Committee, and already there are posters asking for contributions all round College. The "theme" of the "Rag' is at present a closely guarded secret, but those keen to assist in its development should contact A. T. Waterstone, 38, T.C.D., the Tableaux Secretary.

NEW AUDITOR

The most important event in College life this week was the election of Mr. A. N. Jeffares, Sch., to the office of Auditor in the College Historical Society. A well-known student of Classics, as well as of History and English Literature, he achieved distinction as last term's editor of T.C.D., as the C.H.S. he is known as a medallist in Oratory and Composition, and as a capable officer who has successfully represented the Society at many inter-debates. To the second senior office, the Treasurership, Mr. G. A. Stokes, S

The Third International

The Communist International has been disbanded by decision of its Praesidium, or governing body, in Moscow. This was the third, and, from the point of view of nearly every nation outside Russia, the most dangerous of the three great Internationals which have played so mysterious and powerful a part in world affairs during the past eighty years. Very few people can speak with authority about its manner of working, or about its effects. There may be little, if any, truth in the rumours of "Russian gold" which for twenty years were a bogy of conservatives everywhere; but there can be no doubt about the reality of the "Comintern's" creed, which was to spread the gospel of Communism among all nations. Unlike Italian Fascism, which Signor Mussolini many years ago described as "not for export," the Communist faith, as proclaimed by the Third International, was very definitely for export. For at least fifteen years, however, the International has been labouring under a severe handicap; in a sentence, it has not enjoyed the wholehearted support of the Soviet Government. When the short, sharp rivalry between Trotsky and Stalin ended in Trotsky's defeat and exile, the strength went out of the "Comintern." Stalin, in all probability, was as zealous as any of his colleagues for the world's conversion, but he had another and more urgent task for his hand. He had to undertake the physical and social regeneration of Russia herself, that huge, populous, and, by modern standards, backward territory. That was task enough to occupy all the brains and energy of the Soviet Union for at least a couple of generations; it was, moreover, a task that would be complicated to an appalling degree by the hostility of the other Great Powers. For the achievement of her successive great "plans" Russia needed assistance from the capitalist nations in the form of imports—which had to be paid for by exports—not merely of machinery, but of skill; and, what was even more important, she needed peace. It would have been dangerous folly to endow the Third International with the unqualified benison of the Soviet Government. During virtually his whole tenure of power, Stalin has been clipping its wings, and since last Saturday it has ceased to fly any longer.

There is, of course, an immediate, and overwhelming, reason for its abolition. It would be foolish to pretend that a perfect accord has existed between the Soviet Union and its two great allies, Britain and the United States. Both of these nations have a holy horror of Communism. Germany's invasion of Russia in 1941 threw thousands of Britons and Americans into confusion; many of the "big business" men of the United States, in particular, saw themselves confronted with a choice of two evils; their hatred and fear of National Socialism were hardly excelled by their hatred of Communism and by their fear of a Russian victory that might strengthen the prestige of Communism in their own country. Certainly, the new issue confirmed the wavering ranks of the "isolationists" for a while; it remained for the Japanese to resolve the dilemma. Nevertheless, the spectre of Communism continues to haunt many influential people in the English-speaking nations. The mere existence of the Third International has furnished fuel to their suspicions; in private, if not in public, they have declined to accept the bona fides of an ally who protected an organisation to which all the Communists of the world owed allegiance. In these circumstances, the dissolution of the "Comintern" is a stroke of political wisdom. What its practical effect upon the operation of Communism outside Russia will be, nobody can venture to predict; the national organisations cannot have received much assistance from Russia, in any event, since the war broke out. Its political effect, however, is bound to be far-reaching. It will provide the statesmen of Great Britain and the United States with a convincing retort to such of their "anti-Russian" critics as remain. It indubitably will create a new wave of feeling in favour of the Soviet Union—feeling that may result in an intensifying of whatever plans exist for the creation of a "second front" in continental Europe. Perhaps, it was foreknowledge of the decision in Moscow that prompted Mr. Churchill to express the hope in Washington that Stalin would join himself and President Roosevelt in a conference on the war "at no distant date." Those Americans who might not have loved the notion of such a meeting may lose some of their fears with the abolition of the International.

Down to the Sea

There is something personal about a ship, which has led men to refer to this alone among inanimate objects as "she." Few sights do more to arouse the enthusiasm of prosaic men than that of white sails on blue water; and few, indeed, are they who have not declared in song, even on a steamer trip around the bay, their desire for a life on the ocean wave. Yet only the man who has to do with ships can understand the use of that very personal pronoun. A ship has an individuality, an inner vitality, that can no more be explained in terms of planks and canvas than the human soul can be defined by the dissector. At anchor, indeed, she is inanimate enough—a mere water-vehicle; but once let the wind breathe into the sails, and there is life. The old sailing ship, someone has said, is one of the three perfect things made by man; and, perhaps, it was partly the white beauty of the clipper, her stateliness and grace as she moved to the breeze and the sea, that made it possible to compare her only with a woman. "Every ship," said Emerson, "is a romantic object, except that we sail in." It is true that there is a romantic fascination in travelled ships—in even the battered tramps and great freighters which we used to see upon the streams of the Liffey and the Lee. They brought a breath of foreign air to our cities, and brightly coloured flags that flapped at their stems stirred the wanderer in many a man. The ship we sail in, like the woman we live with, cannot hope to retain this romantic allure; but she offers instead a close communion. White sails on blue water may look very fresh and very lovely to the man on the pier. It is the man aboard, however, who can feel the life in the ship, "the wheel's kick and the wind's song," all the exhilaration that goes with sail. The pleasure is equal, whether the craft is a twelve-foot dinghy or a twelve-metre racing cutter. That is why, as long as men have leisure, the cult of sailing will survive, and men will follow for sport in the footsteps of him

WILLIAM BOXWELL
AN APPRECIATION

THE sudden death of William Boxwell, in the small hours of last Saturday morning, has deprived the medical profession of Ireland of one of its most distinguished and trusted members. He combined in himself, to a degree unusual at present, the broad culture of the older school of medicine and the scientific activity of the modern.

It is almost exactly fifty years since Boxwell entered Trinity College from Shrewsbury School. He was a distinguished Arts student, winning a Classical Scholarship in 1896 (his name appearing in the same list as that of the present Vice-Provost), and a Senior Moderatorship, also in Classics, in 1897. It was only after graduation that he turned his attention to medical studies. He took his medical degrees in 1903. Five years later he was elected a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of Ireland, of which College, having served as Censor and Examiner, he became President in 1937. In the intervening years he had been appointed Physician to the Meath Hospital and Professor of Pathology in the School of the Royal College of Surgeons, and had served for a time in the Royal Army Medical Corps in France during the last war.

From his earliest days as a student of medicine he had lived in the atmosphere and traditions of the Meath Hospital, with which he had many family ties. His grandfather, William Stokes, probably the greatest physician Ireland ever produced had spent fifty years teaching and working in its wards. His most important work had been in relation to the diseases of the heart, and their treatment, and it was natural that Boxwell's tastes should lies in the same direction. It is a branch of medicine in which there have been many important developments in our time, and Boxwell kept in constant touch with them. Nevertheless, he was able to demonstrate, by a series of quotations from Stokes, given in "The Introduction to Medicine" (by Boxwell and Purser), that the essentials of the modern teaching of cardiology had all been anticipated by Stokes nearly a century earlier. Despite this act of piety, it would be a mistake to assume that Boxwell was merely a laudator temporis acti, lacking in progressive spirit or scientific curiosity. On the contrary, he was an active scientific and logical thinker. He was in no hurry to adopt every new fashion in medicine, and he knew that many supposed advances are nothing more than new fashions. He thought individually, and he looked to his own experience and that of others whose judgment he could trust, and he gave due weight to what could be supported by reason and experience.

His logical attitude made itself felt in his teaching, which was lucid and convincing. His clinical judgment, both as regards diagnosis and treatment, naturally ripened with an experience of which he made full use.

His colleagues knew his wisdom and judgment as a physician, and they and their patients benefited by it: but his friends knew that he was not only a learned and wise physician, but a humanist of wide culture, with a love of literature and music. To a class and generation, unfortunately becoming more rare in the medical and other professions, in whom specialist interests have not been allowed to overwhelm general culture, or technical skill to banish humanity.

Boxwell took little part in public affairs outside his strictly professional duties. He shrank, with acute sensitivity, from anything that the most malicious might regard as self-seeking or advertisement, and his excessive modesty led him to under-estimate how valuable might have been his activity in other than purely professional fields.

MR. A. R. LOCKHART

The death of Mr. Archibald R. Lockhart, of Dunluce, Mount Merrion avenue, will be regretted by a large number of present and former members of the Civil Service, of which he had been a member from 1891 to 1936. SOCIAL CREDIT PIONEER

The death was announced at Vancouver yesterday of Mr. Aberhart, Premier of Alberta. Mr. Aberhart was aged 65. Sponsoring the Social Credit Plan, under which people living in Alberta were to get a credit dividend of £5 a month, he pledged his administration to establish a financial system based on utilising the national wealth, and in 1935 his party won an overwhelming victory at the provincial elections. One of his early announcements on taking office was to the effect that the first monthly dividend would be postponed for 18 months. But he was unable to fulfil this pledge, and admitted his failure in February, 1937, in which month his Government was defeated on a motion to adjourn the debate on the Budget.
